I worked with Rumesh on a project recently at IFS, he did a really good job managing the technical side of the project. Both regarding Technical Project Management (handling offshore resources in both technical and funcaional area) but also stepped in and did some tasks when we lacked capacity and resources to do this. Rumesh, is always there to help. In short Rumesh made a really significant contribution to our project and ensured the success in our delivery.

Rumesh and I have worked together quite a lot, me as a consultant and Rumesh as system developer. Normally I have some function that needs to be customized och changed in some way, and he will help me find the solution. Either on high level, where he checks what could be done, or on detail level, where he performs the actual development. This collaboration has been working really well. Rumesh is a skilled developer, he is very quick to understand what I as a consultant means and what the customer's needs are. He can also see consequences of different choices and is not afraid to question instructions if he sees better solutions. Rumesh is easy to get along with and is very good at communicating in English. He can handle stressful situations in a very good way, he is always calm and structured. Overall I would say that Rumesh is a great colleague to work together with, and I give him my best recommendations.

Rumesh is absolutely brilliant at finding solutions to complex problems even under pressure regardless of the technology stack involved. He always approaches the problem logically and finds a solution rather quickly and he's well known for this. He's a pleasure to work with and I had the rare opportunity to work with him.

Hasitha Dananjaya

It is a distinct pleasure to recommend Rumesh Aponso. He is one of my batch mates and very close friend. I have worked with him closely since 2009. Within time period we have completed number of projects successfully and achieved some awards. Rumesh is one of the brightest minds I have ever worked with. He catch up new technologies very easily and has short learning curve. During the degree period he has learned and mastered number of technologies which will qualify him as cross stack web developer and more. He is very logical when it comes to problem solving and that makes him an exceptional technical savvy person. One of the things I have noticed about Rumesh is, his courage and attitude towards a completing a task not only successfully but perfectly. This trait drives him to accept tough challenges and push his limits further more. His team spirit is also commendable and he will never let his team down under any circumstances. Another thing I witnessed about Rumesh is, he works on the dot (Not a single late submission on coursework with in these four years). Finally without any arguments, Rumesh will be a very valuable asset to any organization and I wish him very best for his future. Future is bright for you!!!
